

In Our Christmas Store--To-day.

OUR Toy Store is a great bazaar, so arranged that like toys are to be found together, thus permitting free and easy inspection and facilitating to a marked degree shopping in this department. Ever since the establishment of this department some twenty years ago it has been our constant endeavor to give our patrons only reliable, reputable goods at the lowest possible prices. And each succeeding year we set the standard higher as the demand for the finer sorts of Toys increased—until to-day we place before our public the most magnificent collection to be found—embracing the Most Exclusive Toys, Dolls, and Games from Germany, France, Austria, England, Russia, Japan, and America.

Our Doll Department

Is one of the most complete of its kind to be found anywhere, and, we believe, contains a stock of Dolls that is unsurpassed, if equaled, by any house in America to-day. Dolls of every known kind and nationality—China Dolls, Bisque Dolls, Negro Dolls, Japanese Dolls, Chinese Dolls, Indian Dolls, Clown Dolls, Uncle Sam Dolls, Rubber Dolls, Kid Baby Dolls.

Dolls from 1c to $50.

Our Dressed Doll Display

Is unusually broad and complete—the most extensive we have ever assembled. Everything, too, for dolly's wardrobe may be found here in the prevailing fashions of the grown-ups; in fact, everything made for grown folks can be found duplicated, and correctly, too, for dolly. The display includes:

A Doll's Millinery Department,

A Doll's Dress and Suit Department,

A Department of Dolls' Furnishings.

Our "W. & L. Special" Dollar Doll.

This Doll is made for us in Germany. Last year the value was so exceptional that we thought it impossible to improve upon it. But we have. We have put the same quality hair on it that is used on the $5.00 to $10.00 Dolls, and have made the eyelashes out of real hair. And the face this year is prettier and more lifelike than ever. This Doll will be shown to-day for the first time, and is

An Unusual Value at $1.00.

The Doll Hospital

Is now open for the reception of patients. This is a special feature of our Toy Store, and is for poor dollies who have lost an arm or leg or some other part of their anatomy—even perhaps their heads. All parts known to doll surgery supplied—and dolly can be made just as pretty and bewitching as her new sisters.

New Electrical Toys.

The display of Electrical Toys shows marked growth—and here may be seen, in perfect working order, Electric Motors, Electric Trains, &c.—wonderfully exact miniature reproductions of the types now used to further the interests of mankind. Every boy will be interested in this display.

Department of Games.

Not only all the old favorites, but many new and very instructive and entertaining games shown—one of the newest being the "INTERNATIONAL MAIL," a game that unfolds as it is being played, the various modes of mail carrying, the stamps used, and scenes of various countries of the world.

Exhibition of Christmas Trees—

Trees which look as real as any that ever grew in the woods, and that can be folded and put away to be used another season; and all sizes are shown, along with a glittering, sparkling array of Christmas Tree Ornaments to enhance the beauty of the festive cedar.

We have a new toy—a novelty—which we shall give to every boy and girl who visits our Toy Department to-day. You will not have to buy anything to get it. Just ask any of the salespeople.

Novelties in Washington's Smart Shops

By DOROTHY AVERY HOWARD

An importer of novelties in leather, brass goods, &c., in G street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth, offers some very special values in shopping bags at $5. They are of plaid, seal, or walrus, lined with leather, and in the fashionable shapes of the season.

A very interesting picture now exhibited in an art gallery in G street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, is a Medici print—a reproduction of a famous painting now in the National Gallery in London. It is a copy of the portrait of Christian, Duke of Milan, painted by the younger Holbein for Henry VIII, when he contemplated making her his wife. Luckily for her that she did not please his majesty's fancy. It was this picture which brought forth a nation's protest when Pierpont Morgan offered to buy it from the English nobleman who owned it, and rather than let such a work of art get out of the country where it belonged by every right, the English government purchased it.

A big sale to-day of silk petticoats at a popular shop in G street, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets, where women's garments are sold, should attract many patrons, as the values offered are exceptional. For $5 one may buy an $8 skirt; $6 skirts will go at $3.98, and for $2.98 petticoats that usually sell for $4. Plain colors, Persians, stripes, and other fancy combinations are included in the sale.

Some new effects in collar pins are shown by a jeweler in New York avenue, near Fifteenth street. One which I liked very much is formed like a scarf pin, but with gold heads at both ends, each set with a pearl imbedded in the metal and two long, slender links, which form a triangle, with a pendant set with a pearl to match. This is only $3.50, while one of the same design, but with filigree ornamentation instead of the plain gold pin, set with an amethyst is marked at $5.

A 49 cent counter in a department store in G street, near Eleventh street, which shows a big assortment of Parisian trinkets, offers a fine opportunity to the Christmas shopper. Here may be found many attractive novelties in brass, copper, leather, ivory, and other ware—which are both useful and ornamental.

A big doll, with golden or dark curls, and eyes of blue or brown—the famous Jubilee doll, almost as big as the average baby—costs $1 in a well-known department store in Seventh street, near the corner of H street.

Enamelled jewelry is now in vogue. Among the artistic things of this kind which have just arrived in a well-known establishment in Pennsylvania avenue, near Eleventh street, where high-class jewelry and silver articles are shown, I noticed some belt buckles in pastel colors, exquisitely wrought, with bonbonnières and trinket boxes. Tiny watches and lockets are also made of the same enamel, either plain or set with jewels.

A unique article now exhibited in the window of a cigar manufacturer in Pennsylvania avenue, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, is the opera glass triumph, which includes a number of articles in one. It is made with two concave and two convex lenses, so that it does duty as a compass, a reading glass, a magnifier, a telescope, an eye or nose mirror, and a laryngoscope. And all for the small sum of 50 cents.

A shop in G street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, where corsets and underwear are sold, has just received some tailored combination suits which are cut on lines to suit the narrow skirts of this season. They have no fullness, but fit perfectly, and are especially suitable for the woman with the stout figure, who should never wear garments which have gathered around the waist line. The new underwear, the celebrated La Grecque designs, comes in medium grade at $2.50, which are of good quality and well trimmed, and fancier styles at higher prices, if one desires them.

Meader, 215 Ninth street, southeast. Only the relatives and a few friends were present. The bride wore a wistaria colored broadcloth suit, with a large black hat with plumes, and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Mrs. Walter E. Hardester was matron of honor, and, like the bride, wore a wistaria colored suit, with a large black picture hat, trimmed with willow plumes. She carried lavender chrysanthemums. Mr. Walter E. Hardester acted as best man for Mr. Baumann. Following the ceremony refreshments were served, and later the bride and bridegroom left Washington for their honeymoon trip to Atlantic City, Philadelphia, and New York. They will be at home after December 1 at 30 Bryant street northwest.

OPERA SINGER AT CHASE'S.

Adelaide Norwood Sang "Madam Butterfly" Here Last Year.

Some misapprehension seems to have arisen about Miss Adelaide Norwood, who is the "headliner" at Chase's next week. A statement published denied that Miss Norwood had appeared in the title role of Puccini's opera, "Madam Butterfly." Puccini's opera was heard at the Belasco Theater in this city on May 10, 1909, and The Washington Herald, which reviewed the performance in its issue of May 11, printed the full cast, with Miss Adelaide Norwood's name heading the list. In reviewing the performance, it was said: "Miss Adelaide Norwood, who sang Chosai last night, is the possessor of a magnificent soprano voice. The role is a difficult one, the part being unusually great. Miss Norwood not only sang the part well, but acted it with understanding and a grace which showed her to be a thorough student. Her scenes with Pinkerton were exquisite. Miss Norwood was delightful." Miss Adelaide Norwood has deserted grand opera for only a brief season in vaudeville, and her appearance at Chase's next week will be, it is said, the first opportunity vaudeville patrons will have to hear her.
